Hi Lisa,

Dony and I were in Manila from March 23 to April 24 and toward the end of our stay I was able to get hold of Jessie by phone and she informed me that Jess was bedridden and weak due to bronchiectasis and in fact was having fever at that time the reason we also could not visit that time. We are now so sorry and sad we were not able to see him anymore before we left. We did not realize he would be gone this soon.

Will be in Northern Cal with 2nd son Sandy and family (our two precious apos) the end of May for 2 weeks. We hope you stay long enough for us to get together. Pls email when you arrive and maybe we could arrange to come down to Southern Cal in time to catch you.

Dony and Nina

OK, Ani, I will compile emails on Jess, just like what I did for JOng. But about me being the last man standing, that's beyond anybody's control!

And by the way, I got the sad news before your email. I had just sent Mercy some write-ups of the UP 1964 Eng'g Jubilee, since some of us ME's are having a get-together in LA, and I decided to make a souvenir program with before and after pics, and a short write-up by either the person, or some friend.

Mercy answered right away about Jess.

Here attached is Jess' portion, quickly updated.

Danny

Jess, ChE 1964

JESUS PAVON JAVELONA
Sily City, Negros Occ.

BS CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

Entrance Scholar, 1959
College Editor, 1964 Philippinensian
Chairman, UPSCA Knights of the Altar
Representative, Chemical Engineers
Society
Vice-President, Social Cultural Affairs,
UPSCA

Writeup by Danny:

Jess hailed from Sily, Negros Occidental and belonged to a large family with an extensive sugar plantation.

Jess' longest job was with Philippine Refining Company (PRC). He was for some time the head of the detergents section, and held various other top positions through his long tenure. He had extended work assignments in Thailand and in Holland.

He married his college girl friend, UP Business Ad Jessie Quinto from Baguio, and have two boys.

Due to what probably was the work related atmosphere, he developed health problems in the lungs early on. He died first week May.

Interesting photo, Nim. I remember I was at that excursion, too. But would you remember the others in the photo, aside from the obvious Jess, Jessie and Freddie? Is him behind Jessie one of the Baquiran brothers (Rodney or Rex)? The guy in center looks familiar but can't place him, though Lisa guesses it might be Pete Tandoc. And is the girl with tilted head Bernie? And the partially hidden one Digna? What say you, the others?

Now my turn to post another old picture of them at Jess' and Jessie's house in the late 70's, with Lallie and Jimmy.

Jess is the second person in the group who had been affected by polluted work environment. Johnny Reyes is the other one, his parkisons' could be from exposure at Shell refineries. What can we do to extract compensation from PRC, Shell, maybe PMC to pay for the illnesses of Jess and Johnny and the other workers.

I worked at Procter and Gamble PMC at the detergent department. The first job was at detergent making and later at the packing department. At that time literally, Bernie washes my work clothes by just putting it in water and they would have enough Tide to launder, my hair had the white powders too, so I get free shampoo when I took my shower. The only protection we were given then were cotton filled masks, which we rarely used.

At detergents making we were exposed to Oleum- fuming sulphuric acid, alkyd benzene (latter changed to coconut oil extracts- fatty acid), caustic soda to neutralize the Oleum after the sulfation or sulfonation processes, Toluene, to improve viscosity, STTP, Sodium Tri PolyPhosphate, the fertilizer in Tide causing all those algae and water lilies in the rivers; amide to improve bubbling and ten+ other chemicals...then at the packing department, 300 people in three shifts, live thru fine dusts of detergent powders, we all breathed them and got the fine dusts in all our clothes and lungs.

I pity more the daily workers who worked with all these chemicals and pollutants, I am sure many of them died without knowing that their employment caused the sickness. maybe a lawyer in the group can file a class action and compensate all those affected.

I feel sad for Jess and Johnny.
